“Listen, understand, find solutions, and implement them.”

Lean Six Sigma is one of the most powerful business improvement approaches to evolve in the last decade. Lean Six Sigma is both a business improvement program AND a powerful set of statistically based improvement tools. As a business improvement program, Lean Six Sigma emphasizes the development of an appropriately structured and disciplined infrastructure designed to translate strategic and operational opportunities into resourced, well-scoped, executable projects that can be implemented in order to obtain substantial return. The program accomplishes this by training, coaching, and mentoring a group of highly-skilled product and process improvement experts who are assigned to execute these projects.

With our hands-on experience in Lean Six Sigma and DFSS deployment planning, we understand the significance of working together to develop leadership, resources, and infrastructure capabilities to support a self-sustaining culture. Our success-based deployment planning approach of Program Design, Program Preparation, Program Execution, and Program Maturation delivers accountability and self-sufficiency.

AIT Group’s capabilities cover the full range of Lean Six Sigma and DFSS deployment requirements including leadership development, fundamental skills development, advanced skills development, and workshops.

We have developed specialized Lean Six Sigma curriculum for R&D, manufacturing, administrative/transactional, and engineering.

We are able to deliver Design for Six Sigma (DFSS), Transactional Lean Six Sigma, Lean Six Sigma for Supply Chain, and other customized tracks, to meet any company’s needs.

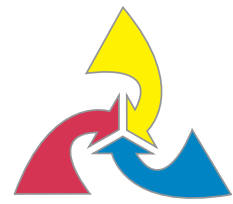

We involve a multi-function group of people to ensure success:

- Executive Steering Committee
- Project Sponsors
- Finance
- Information Technology
- Deployment Champions
- Lean Six Sigma Practitioners
- Human Resources
- Organizational Communications

AIT Group’s Lean Six Sigma services can be delivered through our Knowledge Transfer methodology (employee skill development) and also through our Professional Support Services (direct project support). Regardless of the approach, AIT Group is hands-on and guarantees results.
